

Economics Department, B.P. Chaliha College Conducts Field Survey for Higher Secondary Students

On 15th November, in a proactive move towards community development and educational enhancement, the Department of Economics at B.P. Chaliha College recently undertook a comprehensive field survey for Higher Secondary (HS) students as per the curriculum designed by Assam Higher Secondary Education Council in the surrounding areas. The survey conducted aimed to gather essential data and insights and also to get an idea of carrying out and implementation of the project.

Led by Dr. Trailokya Deka, Assistant Professor in the department of Economics and supported by around twenty-five enthusiastic students. The topic for the project was “Production and Marketing of Vegetables in Nagarbera area.

In conclusion, the field survey conducted by B.P. Chaliha College's Economics Department marks a significant step towards the realization of a transformative educational initiative. By harnessing the power of data-driven insights and community engagement, the college endeavors to contribute to the upliftment of educational standards and the empowerment of local communities.

